Reds Gaining Ground on Central Front

Moscow Reports Nazi Morale Is Weakening and That Air Attacks Are Slowing Up

MOSCOW, Monday, Sept. 1. (P)—Red army soldiers are gaining ground on the boggy Central front with artillery-supported counter-attacks and have broken up repeated German efforts to force a crossing of the Dnieper River, it was reported today.

Front-line dispatches said the army of Marshal Semyon Timoshenko was pushing methodically forward while their fellow soldiers on the northwestern and southwestern fronts were battling to hold positions against violent German assaults.

The midnight communiqué said it has for days now—that fighting was in progress along the whole front, but other reports told of German attempts to put a pontoon bridge over the Dnieper, in the Ukraine.

The four-man crew of a Russian bomber sacrificed their lives to batter the bridge, the Russians said.

The Russians declared the Germans had concentrated large tank and infantry forces near the town of D (probably Dniepropetrovsk) on the right bank of the Dnieper and sappers hurriedly began constructing a pontoon bridge across the river.

Fall To Build Bridge

In the course of two days, Soviet artillery and air force thwarted all German attempts.

By the end of the third day the Germans had succeeded in building the bridge nearly to midstream, the report said, and Soviet dive bombers were ordered to destroy it. It was during this action that the bomber crew crashed intentionally off the bridge.

Mounting German losses in men, men and machines of war in the fighting now general along the enormous front were reported at the start of the eleventh week of the struggle.

On the far-north front, the Red Army was said to have killed 1,200 of a picked German force of 1,500 troops sent to capture the city of "N."

A dispatch to Izvestia said the Red Army won their battle against repeated attacks amidst forests, rocks, lakes and swamps of the Pozone, and later routed a force of mountain troops sent to renew the attack.

German Artillery Weakening

Dispatches to the party organ Dniprova said German artillery fire in the central front was growing weaker in the face of the strong winds.

Petain Organizes Legion on Lines Of German Nazis

New Coalition Will Be the only Political Party in France

VICHY. Unoccupied France, Aug. 31 (P)—Marshal Petain established today the "French Legion of Veterans and Volunteers of the National Revolution"—an authoritarian coalition of his followers reminiscent of Hitler's Nazis and Mussolini's Fascists.

In effect, the Legion became, by the declaration of the old marshal, its president, France's only functioning political party.

The backbone of the organization is the older French legion of war veterans, but with the change of name membership was broadened to include all Frenchmen who support the Vichy regime.

Organization of the broadened legion was a sequel to repressive measures taken against opposition to authority in both occupied and unoccupied zones.

Only last Wednesday a young Norman DeGaulle, who had joined the anti-Communist corps to get near France's leading collaborationists, shot Pierre Laval and Marcel Deltat at Versailles.

Their doctors said today that both gravely wounded men could be considered almost out of danger.

Statement by Petain

Precise functions of the Legion in authoritarian France were not elaborated but Petain, announcing the move to a gathering of tens of thousands of Legionaries at Vichy stadium, said that "we—the government, Admiral Darlan and myself, intend to lean (on the legion) for support."

On Aug. 12 when Petain announced his decision to collaborate with Germany in European reconstruction, he said, "The Legion remains the best instrument in the free zone of the national revolution." In that same speech he disclosed a decree suspending activity of France's old political parties.

Coinciding with Petain's declaration Sunday was a broadcast on the Vichy radio announcing that Gen. Maxime Weygand, proconsul for North Africa, and August Nogues, governor of Algeria, had pledged their loyalty to Petain "without hesitation" and "continued unequivocal support of his policies."

The broadcast was heard in New York by CBS and NBC.)

Makes Single Party

Authorized circles commented that the marshal's speech was "creation of a veritable single party." They recalled that the suspension of the old political parties announced Aug. 12 had given the legion a monopoly on public assembly and political manifestation and added:

"From today it (the legion) inherits from the dead 'national group' not only the war veterans but all those who wish to participate in their action. A single party is born."

The so-called national group was created as the first political party supporting Petain after the fall of France but it fell for technical reasons, mostly because an opposition party in the occupied zone called the national popular group, had been formed. This latter group has been strong in support of all-out French-German collaboration.

While the national group died a natural death the Legion has grown to between 1,300,000 and 1,500,000 members, it is said.

Curtail Use of State Autos To Cut Down on Gas

Special Committee Makes Suggestions to Governor O'Connor

ANAPOLIS, Md., Aug. 31 (P)—A special committee submitted to Governor O'Connor today suggestions designed to curtail the use of gasoline in state-owned automobiles and recommended that they be put into effect immediately by heads of all state agencies.

The committee, headed by Budget Director Walter N. Kirkman, was created by O'Connor to effect economies in state use of gasoline in view of an existing shortage of motor fuel in Eastern seaboard states.

They presented six rules to be followed in actual operation of state-owned vehicles:

(1) Keep spark advanced to give the most efficient use of gasoline; (2) keep carburetor adjusted; (3) use choke sparingly; (4) start and stop slowly; (5) shift into high as quickly as possible; (6) operate cars at a reasonable speed, not to exceed forty-five miles an hour.

The committee also recommended that:

Study Individual Cars

The various agencies study the gasoline consumption of individual cars so as to determine those which

Bathing Beauty Contestants Must Be Able To Swim, Judges Decide

BY CLADWIN HILL

NEW YORK, Aug. 31.—(The Special News Service)—We may not be getting back to Normandy, but we're getting astonishingly realistic.

Out in California they've just had a bathing beauty contest in which contestants had to be able to swim . . . and a blonde beauty competitor there couldn't be any worse . . .

On the other hand, it may be considered that this trend is offset by conditions in Paris, Tex.—where pretty girls advertising a rodeo used pillows in their saddles . . .

Things are getting too realistic for some people . . . The Pennsylvania employment service couldn't locate people to staff its own offices . . . And in Oklahoma City they had to call off a Labor Day parade—because everybody was too busy working . . .

British Attack Italian Squadron In Mediterranean

Hit Cruiser and Damage Liner and Large Tanker

LONDON, Aug. 31 (P)—A torpedo raid by a British submarine on an Italian naval squadron in the Mediterranean was reported today by the Admiralty, and it implied that a six-inch gun cruiser had been hit.

A communiqué acknowledged, however, that the Italians' explosive counter attack—the menace of depth bombs, gunfire and aerial blows—prevented observation of that a six-inch gun cruiser had been hit.

Sinking of four merchant vessels and damaging of a convoyed liner and a 4,000-ton Italian tanker were chalked up as definite victories of British underwater seamen over an unspecified period of give-and-take warfare between the African and European coasts.

The Italian naval squadron, made up of three six-inch gun cruisers, six destroyers and flying boats, was said to have been sighted at sea on the afternoon of Sunday, Aug. 24.

A large oil-bearing schooner, another large schooner deep in the water with a full cargo, a 4,000-ton supply ship and a heavily laden vessel of some 2,000 tons escorted by trawlers were listed as sunk by the British in attacks with torpedoes and shells.

Tripoli Raided

The whole of the Spanish Mole at Tripoli was left afire after a heavy British raid Friday night in which twenty-five tons of bombs were dropped, the RAF announced today in Cairo.

Great clouds of smoke arose, apparently from burning oil stores, it was said, and two ships, one of 8,000 tons and another of 5,000 tons, were left blazing from stem to stern.

Another smaller ship exploded and in subsequent hits a medium ship was set burning, the communiqué said. From the nearby Karabani Mole also flames spouted hundreds of feet into the air, and a fuel dump blew up.

Another merchant ship of 8,000 tons, escorted by destroyers, was believed to have been hit by a torpedo from a plane in an attack off Sicily, it was said.

Power House Damaged

In an attack on Licata, Sicily, the British said direct hits were obtained.

Weygand Renews Pledge to Petain

NEW YORK, Aug. 31 (P)—The Vichy radio, in a broadcast heard here by NBC, said today that General Weygand, French pro-consul in North Africa, had "renewed his pledge of loyalty" to Marshal Petain in a radio speech.

The organization estimated that 600 persons would lose their lives in motorcar accidents from 6 p.m. Friday to midnight Monday, compared with the average 420 deaths for a summertime weekend.

ANOTHER SOVIET TOWN FALLS

According to the official German caption, this picture shows the main street of a burning town on the eastern Soviet front. The Germans continue to claim advances along the entire 2,000-mile front, while Soviet sources declare the Nazis have bogged down.

Accidents on car-clogged highways caused more than three times as many violent deaths as all other causes combined as the nation's celebration of the three day labor day weekend reached the half way mark yesterday (Sunday).

At least 192 persons were killed in traffic mishaps, compared with fifty-two deaths from such causes as drownings, plane crashes, suicides, hunting accidents, and stab-bings.

Five members of an Indiana family were killed in a crash near Greenfield Saturday and four members of an Illinois family died in a collision Sunday near Wilmington.

A negro woman was killed in New York City when she fell out of an apartment window while hanging an American flag.

A holiday crowd which jammed the Shedd aquarium in Chicago was thrown into panic when an enraged bull escaped from a nearby corral and gored two park policemen and three women before it was shot to death.

Illinois led all states in traffic deaths with 19. California was second with 15 and Indiana third with 14.

Roosevelt Plans Important Talk On Defense Moves

resident Will Be on Air from Hyde Park This Afternoon

By DOUGLAS B. CORNELL
HYDE PARK, N. Y., Aug. 31.—President Roosevelt began reading today a labor day address which may offer an important presentation of his views on foreign policy and the defense program.

The ten-minute speech, to be broadcast at 1:50 E.D.T. tomorrow afternoon will coincide with the second anniversary of the start of the war in Europe. Taking note of that fact in Washington Friday, Mr. Roosevelt had hinted that he might have something appropriate and significant to say.

The chief executive set aside the entire afternoon to work on the address. It will represent his first report to the American people since dramatic conferences at sea with British Prime Minister Winston Churchill.

Part of Hour's Program

Mr. Roosevelt's ten minutes on the air will conclude an hour's program, arranged by the Office of Production Management. The program will have an international scope with Ernest Bevin, British labor minister speaking from London.

Additional speakers will include Sidney Hillman, associate director of OPM; William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor; and James Carey, secretary of the Congress of Industrial Organizations.

The chief executive will speak from his own room in the Franklin D. Roosevelt Library here.

Meanwhile, three brief announcements came from the temporary White House offices:

1. Mr. Roosevelt has accepted the resignation of Judge George Stewart Brown of the United States Customs Court in New York, effective today. Brown has reached retirement age.

Provides Job For Tugwell

2. The chief executive has issued an executive order, amending such an order dating back to Jan. 17, 1933, so as to permit an officer or employee of the federal government to hold the office of chancellor of the University of Puerto Rico.

The effect of the order is to permit Rexford G. Tugwell to serve both as governor of Puerto Rico and chancellor of the university.

3. A certificate, signed by the president, grants the Philippine department of the army authority to ship gasoline, fuel oils and lubricants in vessels of foreign registry.

An act of 1934 required the use of American vessels unless the chief executive directed otherwise.

American Labor Asked To Help Britain in War

"Give Us All You've Got," George Hicks Says in Message

LONDON, Monday, Sept. 1. (P)—George Hicks, Parliamentary secretary for the works and buildings industry, asked American labor in a broadcast early today to the United States to "give us all you've got."

Answering a cable query from Matthew Woll, AFL vice-president and chairman of the American Labor Committee to aid British labor—"what can American labor do to hasten and assure victory for democracy?"—Hicks cautioned:

"Don't be led away into easy optimism because the news for a time is not as black as it was. The danger, if we relax our efforts, is real and pressing."

"We want every munition of war you can send and we want them to reach us safely x x x."

"I should like American workers to feel that they are right in this war, fighting side by side at the benches and in the workshops with their British comrades, x x x."

"We here feel that no sacrifice is too great to smash Hitlerism. We ask workers of the United States to feel the same way. Therefore I say to you, give us all you've got."

American-Made Bomber Attacks Port of Bremen

LONDON, Aug. 31 (P)—An American-made fortress bomber flying in the air-stratosphere bombed the German port of Bremen in open daylight today, the air ministry announced, during non-stop daylight continental offensive marking the day's busiest day since the Battle of Britain last fall.

"Our bombs fell in the middle of the port," the pilot of the fortress raider reported. "There was no fire from anti-aircraft guns and we saw no fighters."

"In fact it was a peaceful Sunday afternoon."

Divorce Granted

Mrs. Joy A. Marquette, of Cumberland, was granted an absolute divorce from John R. Marquette, of Wellersburg, Pa., in a decree signed in circuit court by Associate Judge William A. Huster. Mrs. Marquette, represented by Edwin M. Horcher, attorney, was granted the right to assume her maiden name, Portman.

Leaders of Defense Set-Up Join Labor Chiefs in Praising Workers

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31 (P)—general of the Office of production Management, said in a statement up and of organized labor, in labor day statements today praised the workers contributing to arming the country—and urged still greater efforts.

Undersecretary of war Robert P. Patterson expressed "profound gratification over the patriotic manner in which they (workers) are rising to the needs of the present emergency."

In telegrams sent to William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, and Philip Murray, president of the Congress of Industrial Organizations, Patterson added:

"America can only hope to survive the real and imminent dangers confronting it today if every American worker makes himself a committee of one to refute the agents of discord and defeatism in our midst, to awaken our nation to its peril, and to increase production to the level that modern armament demands."

American assistance was not as large as had been expected, and tried to banish the thought that sooner or later the United States would enter the war.

Beverly Baxter, conservative member of Parliament, writing in the tabloid, Sunday graphic, said "American aircraft production is gathering speed, but the wheels are not turning fast enough. Everyone in the air force, both here and in U. S. A. knows that."

America, he added, is with us to the last point short of belligerence."—Sees Opinion Changing

John Gordon, editor of the influential Sunday Express, in a signed editorial, told his readers that "changes are now taking place in American opinion which are not to our advantage." He added that Adolf Hitler "is striving to turn them to his advantage."

"The current of American thought has set lately against partnership in our war," he continued. "The cold fit has succeeded the hot."

The New York correspondent of the Sunday Dispatch declared "only twenty per cent of the American people would support a declaration of war today, according to polls of public opinion."

This statement was bound to astonish many Britons who had accepted the Atlantic meeting of Prime Minister Churchill and President Roosevelt as a last step before active American participation in the war.

Red Attacks Fall

German dispatches again mentioned Russian counter-thrusts in the middle sector of the eastern front, but asserted that they flattened out against a stonewall defense.

From the northern front came reports that the Russians had planted thousands of land mines to hinder the advance on Leningrad. On a front held by a single German army corps it was declared that engineers had eliminated 1,100 mines in dangerous hours of toll.

Railway lines and fortifications were reported to have been blasted by German fliers east of the Dnieper. 143 Red army planes were declared destroyed and a toll was claimed too at sea—the sinking of two gunboats, a tug and a transport by patrols over the Finnish gulf and Lake Ladoga and damaging of a 4,000-ton ship near Odessa.

The chiefs of the two big labor organizations summed up their views this way:

Green: "Proud as I am of the record of the men and women of the American Federation of Labor, I feel it necessary to call upon them to redouble their efforts during the coming months. A crisis is at hand. New threats to our national safety are looming and our country may eventually be forced into war to defend our way of life."

Murray: "We have shown that labor has the brains and public spirit to take its place as a responsible participant in the national defense effort. As yet, labor's offer of collective participation has not been accepted. We will not cease, however, in our determined effort to see that labor takes its rightful place."

President Roosevelt will broadcast from Hyde Park tomorrow as a part of the national observance. Also on the program over all networks at 12:45 p.m. EST, will be a number of other national officials and Ernest Bevin, British labor minister.

Although millions of workers made plans to participate in Labor Day mass meetings, parades, picnics and other organized celebrations, many will have no holiday. Many plants, working on pressing defense orders, will keep their wheels turning throughout the day.

World Power Nazi Goal

After the collapse of the blitzkrieg against Britain, Pravda said, Hitler tried to "stock up resources for a further war against England and to fulfill his plans to enslave the world at the cost of the U. S. S. R."

"Hitler has nothing to rely on in Soviet territory. There is no fifth column, no defection, no atmosphere of capitulation, no panic,"

"Undoubtedly the military plans of Hitler for the Eastern front were upset. The blitzkrieg failed and for this very reason Hitler is now throwing into the eastern front all the forces still available to him."

The day communiqué quoted German prisoners and letters taken from dead and wounded German soldiers to picture "enormous losses sustained daily by the Nazi troops" and the confusion and hunger brought upon the invaders by the resistance of the Red army, its guerrilla comrades and the scorched earth retreat of the Russians.

A lance corporal of an infantry company said to have lost 120 of its 160 men was quoted: "everywhere we are passing empty villages abandoned by the population. Crops are destroyed, cattle driven away. We can't get potatoes anywhere. Soldiers of our regiment are starving . . ."

The field kit of a German officer killed on the Ukraine front was said to have disclosed the fatal attitude of German forces facing Kiev—the still defended capital of the Ukraine. One thousand "far sighted" notification forms for the parents of soldiers were contained in a satchel, the communiqué said, all beginning:

"Your beloved son fell in fighting at the approaches to Kiev . . ."

At the same time the Finnish troops made impressive gains of territory on the Karelian Isthmus in the direction of Leningrad.

German dispatches declared that these northland fighters had chased the Russians back on the isthmus to what was the Russian-Finnish border before the Soviet attack of 1939 and DNEB stated that, northeast of Lake Ladoga, Finns had passed the old boundary in an operation which conceivably could menace Leningrad.

The old Karelian Isthmus border was about forty miles northwest of Leningrad; the boundary east of Lake Ladoga was some 200 miles away.

Russian forces, however, still held Hango, the old naval harbor on the golf of Finland.

Vanquished Government Looks for Early Return to Normalcy

By DANIEL DELUCE
TEHRAN, Iran, Aug. 31. (P)—The vanquished government of Iran announced today the expectation that British-Russian military operations would stop and "the cause for the peoples' anxiety will soon be removed" as a result of talks with allied representatives.

United States Minister Louis G. Dreyfus, Jr., accepted a role of intermediary at the request of German Minister Etell for 700 German nationals harbored at the summer legation in Suburban Tehran.

Ettel asked Dreyfus yesterday to seek assurances from the British and Russian governments for their safety. Dreyfus expressed willingness to convey the request to London and Moscow.

The British radio quoted the Reuters News Agency as stating that well-informed sources in Simla decided: "the German community, apart from the legation and some technicians, will have to leave within a week. The Allies will reaffirm that the measures taken were not directed against Iran, but against the Menakof German intrigues in the country."

Bombers Drop Propaganda

Fifteen Soviet bombers showered propaganda leaflets in the French language over the tense capital for an hour and forty-five minutes today as the government considered British-Russian peace terms.

Explosions were heard in the vicinity of a naval airport at Doshan Tappeh, northeast of Teheran, and a cement factory to the southeast. The causes were not announced.

Sources close to Iran's royal family said the ruler, Reza Shah Pahlevi, had sent his children to Isfahan, 200 miles south of Teheran but remained himself at Saadabad palace near the capital.

A British communiqué issued from Simla said only "small, token forces" of Iranian troops would remain in the nation's oil field district occupied by the British.

Foreign diplomatic sources at Ankara, Turkey, said British and Russians were expecting to occupy the 600-mile trans-Iran railway from the Persian gulf to the Caspian oil fields and Teheran.

Persons acquainted with negotiations leading up to the export decree published a few days ago as an Argentine defense measure said it was "one of the biggest breaks yet" in Argentina's traditional policy of countering United States influence in South America where possible.

The action was requested by the United States, these sources said and constitutes a part of the inter-American program to make the Western Hemisphere self-sufficient in war needs should it face an invasion threat alone, and to seal resources against the Axis.

Calvarymen Patrol Streets

Armed cavalrymen patrolled Tehran boulevards and sentries stood at the doors of downtown buildings under the martial law decree of Saturday.

Martial law gave the ministry of war power over all matters connected with the public welfare, established military courts, provided the death penalty for persons convicted of treason against the government imposed a 9 p. m. curfew and set up other restrictions.

Foreign sources said three zones would be established under British-Russian plans, with Teheran placed in the central zone under nominal Iran-Allied control.

Observers here expressed the opinion that England still needed a buffer state bordering India. Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden's speech yesterday was interpreted as containing some assurances that Iran would not be permanently occupied.

Uncertain also gives the American exclusive use of other vital raw materials of this country, chiefly beryl, mica, iron, copper, manganese and aluminum. Beryl is used to harden aluminum for airplanes and in gun barrels so they can withstand the heat of firing. Mica is in big war-time demand to insulate sparkplugs, and radio tubes.

Heads of departments and institutions advised that, wherever possible, trips should be scheduled so as to transport the maximum number of employees in one car.

An intensive study will be made of the necessities for travel and that all unnecessary trips be eliminated, studied and, wherever possible, practicable and economical, such carriers be used instead of motor vehicles.

Consideration be given to the use of a sticker attached to the rear window indicating the operator of the car is cooperating in plans to conserve gasoline.

Must Stop Truck Motors

With particular reference to trucks, when standing the motors in all cases must be cut off and not allowed to idle.

State departments and institutions be requested to report monthly consumption and cost of vehicles under their control for the purpose of determining whether the recommendations were being followed and whether effective.

And finally, that if the suggested measures do not result in an appreciable reduction in gasoline consumption, consideration be given to the installation of an inexpensive type of governor or gasoline intake control device.

Before this Stockholm report was received interest was aroused in London by the suggestion that Finland shortly might seek a separate peace with Russia, now that territory lost to the U.S.S.R. had been largely regained.

An authoritative source said he believed the report was in accord with the wishes of Finland but that she might find herself "in an awkward position" with Germany.

Helsinki dispatches quoted the newspapers Savo as saying, "it is possible that operations in which Finnish troops are concerned will terminate shortly with the driving out of Russian troops from territories ceded last year."

Informed quarters expressed belief that the Finnish recovery of Viipuri might be the logical point to seek withdrawal from the war. But since that might release Russian troops for service elsewhere they held it doubtful that Germany would accede.

Even if the Finns did end their part in the fighting on the Karelian

Melissa Thought that No Man Could Resist Her, but that Was before She Met the Handsome Professor

By BETTY BUCK

"This is my first day as instructor of you young women of the brook being snubbed by a mere Longview Academy's senior class," servant, even one as handsome as Dr. Grant Howland said with sternness standing before the dozen upper-class students of the exclusive school. "I hope that my I get through with him, Cora. 'I'm work here will always be as pleasant as it has been this first day, sanctimonious Dr. Howland. And it will be, I'm sure," and here his eyes looked cynically impersonal.

Cora shrugged assent. "I suppose that means that I'll run interference for you again—or take Buck Jannifer out of play temporarily. You'd best watch out, Melissa. Buck is a State halfback, but he's also big and masculine off the gridiron. He'll smack your pretty "Nice young ladies don't cross their limbs just that way, and you can pull your skirt down to cover the kneecaps," he said calmly. "I might warn you that I'm impervious to such tricks. I asked you here to find out when you were going to get wise to yourself and stop making a public play for me. I don't like it!"

"Is that why you've been trailing around campus with Cora Stafford?" she shot back maliciously. Dr. Howland glared.

"Cora Stafford is plain, in comparison to you, but she has a brain. Miss Meredith," he said calmly. "I recognized at once your devise of keeping her with you. The comparison is all to your advantage, of course. I've seen that one played too!"

Melissa bit her lip wryly. Was he really that cold? "I believe that you've gotten an unfortunate impression of me, Dr. Howland," she replied sweetly, smiling at him with her ingenuous smile.

She decided that a shift in her strategy was called for at this stage of the game. Cora Stafford had played her part well enough but now she could be shifted to work on Buck Jannifer, the real romance. Buck was a little obtuse to feminine policies. A week would see Dr. Howland under her spell and Buck could not possibly get out of hand in that time. She smiled to herself.

Busily she plotted her campaign. The last dance before commencement would be the scene of the Doctor's defeat, she decided. It was perfectly proper for a faculty member to help out a young lady who had no escort by escorting her himself. Cora could cut out Buck from the crowd easily enough. She had trained her purposely in the technique.

Dr. Howland fell for the tempting bait like an innocent. He called for Melissa and drove her to the dance in high spirits. They danced and chatted and he took the first four dances boldly. At the fifth he took her outside for some air.

"Do you mind if I take you home early, Miss Meredith?" he asked politely, but in good humor. He was pleased about something. Was he

"He meant you, darling, of course," Cora said amusedly. Melissa was rich. She was beautiful and beautifully pampered by indulal, "as soon as one or two of you ears down one of these times when you make an offside play!"

"You leave that to me, Cora. I'll have our proud Dr. Howland trotting at my heels inside of a week, you'll see!"

The earnest young Dr. Howland had other ideas, it very quickly became apparent. Melissa, a past mistress in all the gentle arts of blandishment, found herself ramming her figurative head into a very hard and very cold stone wall once her conquest of the professor was fairly launched. He even had the temerity to be seen walking the campus with Cora Stafford, who was poor and only a student at exclusive Longview as a scholarship student.

Dr. Myers Urges School Students To Keep Heads

Many Able Scholars Wear Themselves Out Trying To Do Too Much

By GARRY C. MYERS, PH.D.
During the last two decades the idea of participating in numerous out-of-class activities has been growing. So have opportunities in this direction.

The school and college newspaper and public press have stimulated this ideal. Playing on the football or baseball team or being known about the school or college as a leader in ever so many extra-curricular activities makes good news items. These also afford interesting topics of conversation for students outside the classroom and an escape from worries over classes.

In most high school and college groups, excellence in scholarship alone does not get a student very far in the estimation of his school or college mates. The bookworm is not important on the campus.

As a result, many of the ablest scholars in high school and college are wearing themselves out trying to do too many things. With only so many hours a day at their disposal, they keep up their scholastic standing, if they do, by using hours for study that they need for sleep or relaxation.

Community Interests

These same students are sometimes "drafted" by various organizations of the community. Usually the student in most activities at school is also in most in the community. While in the long run, his participation in community activities is of more permanent value than participation in activities at school, the larger pressure to be in many things and excel in them comes from the school.

The pity of it is that teachers as school and parents at home encourage the over-conscious, over-eager, over-active student. All too many of these choice youths are breaking from overwork.

I wish we might persuade the youth in high school and college to use his head and not be carried away by temporary pressures for popularity. Then he would resolve to select one major activity and try to do well in it and not dissipate his energies over many. All else being equal, he should choose an activity in which he must work and play with a number of his fellows and learn to get along with them. Of course, if he only knew he might grow most in this direction right in his classroom and regular school work, by cultivating the nice amanities of social grace toward other students, and always being considerate of their rights and feelings.

Just a small portion of the student body leads the activities and stands out in them. This very fact takes some of the good personal qualities from the lonely timid student who needs such experiences most.

Parents and teachers should by

Today's GARDEN-GRAF

By DEAN HALLIDAY
(Distributed by Central Press Association)

Correct Watering of a Lawn

Lawns, as a rule require some artificial watering during the summer. Frequent light sprinkling, however, benefit the weeds more than the lawn grasses.

Faulty watering has been the cause of more lawn failures than any of the other many mistakes that are made in lawn maintenance, yet the correct method is easier and requires less personal effort.

Figure 1 of the above Garden-Graph shows the wrong way to sprinkle. If you sprinkle a lawn every night it causes the roots of the grass plants to grow upwards because the top inch or two of the ground is kept moist while the stars directly beneath remain dry.

Figure 2 shows the result of correct sprinkling. If you do not have a sprinkler attachment lay the hose across a board laid flat on the lawn and let the water wash across the lawn. If you have a sprinkler, divide the lawn area into sections and place the sprinkler in the center of each section, letting it flow for 20 to 30 minutes once a week or, in very dry weather, twice a week.

Dr. W. C. Harrison Speaks to Mt. Savage Scouts

Talk Concerns Treatment of Patient before Physician Arrives

MT. SAVAGE, Aug. 31.—Dr. William C. Harrison addressed the members of the first aid class of the Mt. Savage Boy Scouts Friday evening in the recreation hall of the Methodist church. His talk concerned treatment of a patient before the doctor arrives. He told the boys that the most important thing in case of an accident was to be calm because excitement often causes one to do more harm than good to the injured person.

Dr. Harrison also explained the treatment of unconscious persons and told how to determine the cause and nature of unconsciousness. He said that when calling a doctor a person should be clear and concise and should state the nature of the illness or injury and tell whether the patient is conscious.

Mistreatment of burns and fractures was explained by the doctor, who described the best ways in which these injuries could be taken care of.

After the lecture an open forum was held and Dr. Harrison answered questions submitted by the group. Thirty members attended.

Brief Mention

A party for the benefit of the Mt. Savage volunteer fire company will be held tomorrow (Monday) evening at 8:30 o'clock in the Junior Order Hall.

NEW YORK, Aug. 31 (AP) — Just about the time you could actually hear Brooklyn hearts bursting all over the Polo Grounds today, the Dodgers pulled themselves together and walloped the Giants 13 to 6 to remain on the heels of St. Louis in the hot National League flag chase.

"Dem Bums" piled up four runs in the first inning, blew that lead and were behind 6-4 at the end of six frames before they finally went to work before a crowd of 24,694. Then Dolph Camilli clouted a three-run homer in the seventh to put the game on ice and in the eighth the Brooklyn knocked the roof in on their old enemies with five unearned runs.

Since the Cardinals whipped Cincinnati, the Polo Grounds proceedings left the pennant parade looking like this:

W. L. Pet.

St. Louis 81 45 .643

Brooklyn 82 46 .641

It was strictly a roll-up-your-sleeves-and-knock-the-other-guy's-ears-off kind of a ball game, with pitchers a dime a dozen. The Dodgers used four of them, including both their aces, Kirby Higbe and Whitey Wyatt, and they were slightly touched for thirteen hits. Luke Hamlin, who relieved Starter Higbe in the fourth, was the winner. The Giants had three elbowers laboring, with Cliff Melton the starter and loser, as Brooklyn teed off with fifteen hits.

Camilli, with a single as well as his twenty-eighth homer of the year, and four runs batted in during the afternoon was the hero, although Manager Leo Durocher, who inserted himself at shortstop, was no harm to his club, either, in knocking four tallies across the plate, getting hits twice with the bases loaded. Mel Ott clouted his twenty-fifth four-bagger of the season and Dick Bartell whacked one in the sixth.

Babe Young was the All-American goat for the afternoon. His error helped the Dodgers to their four-run opening inning speed and another fumble opened the gates to the eighth inning blast. The box-

In Memoriam

When evening shades are falling, And I'm sitting all alone, In my heart there comes a longing, If you only could come home.

To those who have a father, Father him with care, For you do know his value, And see his vacant chair.

In loving Memory of our beloved Father William H. Hafer, who passed away 2 years ago Sept. 1, 1939.

Stay Out of War, America Urged By Hibernians

Strong Anti-War Platform
Adopted by Irish at Convention Here

Strong opposition to America participation in World war II was voiced yesterday by the Maryland branch of the Ancient Order of Hibernians.

In one of several anti-war resolutions adopted without contest, the Hibernians declared that "we insist that the pledges be kept which were made to the people of the United States before the last national election by the leaders of both major political parties that American soldiers would not be sent to take part in the war which has developed out of the power politics of the old world."

LAI ASK AKK OF GUA LEA BE THE SAC BUT SUBS FOD

"If the political leaders in this country break faith with the people who are opposed to American involvement in another foreign war," the resolution warned, "the first principle of our democracy, which is that government derive their just powers from the consent of the governed," will be violated and the foundations of American liberty imperiled.

The Hibernians, holding their annual state convention at the Fort Cumberland hotel, also expressed "full sympathy" with the efforts of Pope Pius XII "to restore peace to the world" and voiced the hope that "rulers everywhere will listen to his pleading for a return to reason and sanity in the councils of nations before chaos comes."

Still another anti-war plank adopted by the convention was one in which the Hibernians stated that "we abhor and condemn every form of aggression, whether it be the aggression by a totalitarian or imperialist dictator or by the representative of a self-styled democracy."

Maryland's Irish also went on record as "congratulating and commanding" the "people of our blood and race in Eire for the example which they have given to a war-mad world by adhering to an attitude of strict neutrality at a time when the rulers of other lands, impelled by the desire to retain loot of old conquests, or by ambitions for new possessions, and to acquire greater power, are exposing millions of human beings and many countries to the horrors and devastation of modern warfare."

Eire's Stand Lauded

"We rejoice because the people of Eire and their spokesmen have resolutely refused to be drawn into the war by surrendering territory to England or any other nation for war bases, as such a surrender would be a violation of Eire's neutrality and an abandonment of her sovereign right to control her own territory and make her own decisions on questions involving her peace and security."

Another resolution touching on the international situation said that the Hibernians are "unalterably opposed to any political union, now or ever, between these United States and England or any other foreign country."

Although thus adopting a strong anti-war attitude, the Hibernians endorsed the defense program, declaring that "we pledge our undivided support, moral and material, to the defense of America, its ideals, its free institutions and laws" and commanding congress "for their action of national preparedness."

A resolution condemning Communism was adopted, too, after it was explained that it had no reference to proposed American aid to Russia in its fight against Nazi Germany. The resolution urged that "we give ear to and heed the admonitions of the Holy Father, Pope Pius XII, that Catholics or any Christians cannot give any aid to Communism and remain Christian."

Aid to Irish Urged

In connection with the resolution commanding Eire's policy of neutrality, the Hibernians urged the United States to send ships, arms, ammunition, food and other commodities in the quantities requested by the government of Ireland, to enable the Irish nation to maintain its policy of absolute neutrality."

The organization of Irish-Americans again "denounced the puppet government set up by England in six counties of Northeast Ulster as a despotism functioning with the aid of subsidies from the English imperial treasury."

An English commission, which investigated conditions in that area, the resolution continued, "declared that under the government in power there the rule of law and justice has been abrogated."

"We arraign the government of Northern Ireland before the court of American public opinion for having governed tyrannically and unjustly since it was brought into existence by English statescraft to keep Catholics and Protestants divided in that area in pursuance of the old Imperialist policy of Divide and Conquer."

Officers Re-elected

"We demand in the name of justice that Irish nationalists imprisoned there without a charge being preferred against them be liberated and that the boundary around these six Irish counties be abolished and that they be restored to the Irish nation of which they are a part."

The resolutions were submitted by a committee headed by John T. O'Leary as chairman and including in its membership John P. Dorman, secretary; Thomas J. Luby, James P. O'Connell, Charles H. Meadowcroft, John J. Fitzsimmons and J. Fahey McDonough.

The business session was also

Townsendites Will Not Back Downey Compromise Plan

Beecher Hess Explains Both Pension Schemes Here on Founders' Day

The Downey committee report, a pension program which will be presented to Congress this year, does not have the backing of Dr. Francis E. Townsend, even though it contains three factors approved by sponsors of the Townsend National Recovery Plan, Beecher E. Hess, legislative representative from Norwood, Ohio, told an audience of 300 persons who gathered yesterday at the Constitution park amphitheater for a rally and picnic marking Founders' day.

Introduced by James W. Miller, of Cumberland, deputy national representative for Maryland and West Virginia, Hess gave a clear-cut and interesting explanation of the plan advanced by Dr. Townsend, compared it with the Downey committee report made in the United States Senate, and urged followers to continue their fight until a full program of Townsendism is approved by Congress.

Downey Group Reports

Hess stated that a select committee of the United States Senate, comprising Sheridan Downey, chairman; Claude Pepper, Florida; Robert LaFollette, Wisconsin; Theodore Green, Rhode Island; Wayland Brooks, Illinois; John Thomas, Idaho, and Thomas Connally, Texas, conducted hearings in Washington, at which Dr. Townsend was present, explored the pension program from top to bottom, and made recommendations as regards to what they believed was a good program of legislation to present to Congress this year.

The Downey committee, according to Hess, proposed a monthly pension of $20 for the first eighteen months after which the pension is to be stepped up to $30; that the legislation be uniform in every state in the union, and that the age qualification as under present social security be reduced from sixty-five to sixty years. This proposed legislation also calls for the elimination of the means test.

Pensions Insufficient

Hess stated that $20 or $30 as proposed in the Downey report is insufficient as a monthly pension but the other factors are similar to those of the Townsend Plan. The latter plan proposes a two per cent tax on all those with annual gross incomes of $3,000. The pensions under this setup will amount to approximately $50 when pro-rated.

The hit-run victim was Charles Jeffries, 64-year-old Savage River dam worker, of Cresaptown. He suffered a compound fracture of the right arm, shock and bruises when struck by an automobile as he walked along McMullen highway on the West side of the Dingle hill about 12:40 a.m. yesterday. He was walking West, facing oncoming traffic, when he was hit by a car heading toward Cumberland, according to City Officer James J. Condon, one of the investigating officers.

Search for Driver

City officers, aided by state police, were still seeking the hit-and-run driver last night as Jeffries remained in a "fair" condition at Allegany hospital.

It was while Condon was en route to Allegany hospital about 1 a.m. in connection with this accident that the police car was struck by an Astor cab said to have been driven by Victor F. Dennison, of Hyndman, Pa.

The scot car, crossing Centre street as it headed East on Frederick, was struck on the right side in the rear by the cab, which was going north on Centre. The police car was damaged to the extent of "at least $50," according to Assistant Police Chief John J. Treiber.

The driver was charged with reckless driving by Condon and cited to appear for a hearing tomorrow in trial magistrates court.

The third accident, in which severely persons narrowly escaped serious injury, occurred about midnight on McMullen highway, near McCooe.

Negro Is Held

As a result, James A. Washington, colored, of 441 Pine avenue, was booked at the city jail on two state motor law charges.

State Police Corporal Charles E. McCoy said Washington, heading West, careened over on the wrong side of the road and smashed against another car. The front wheels of both cars were torn off, and the Washington car ended up in a field beside the road after crashing against a power pole, he said.

The trooper added that Washington was walking along the road when he arrived on the scene, other occupants of the car having hailed a bus and departed. Questioned, the negro denied his name was Washington or that he was connected in any way with the accident. McCoy went on, and he was not detained.

After a pick-up was broadcast for Washington, city police arrested him near his home about 3:30 a.m. and lodged him in the city jail for hearing tomorrow.

These were the only accidents of any consequence reported up to midnight, although a few minor crashes were said to have occurred in and near the city.

The weekend was otherwise quiet, and the number of drunk and disorderly cases was about average.

Rail and Bus Service Is Reported Heavy

The holiday rush on railroads and bus lines began Saturday and promises to be the heaviest in years, according to predictions made yesterday by officials of the B. & O. railroad and the Blue Ridge Transportation Company.

The B. & O. reported that practically all passenger trains headed east and west are running in extra sections to handle the crowds while the Blue Ridge company has pressed additional buses into service to avert overcrowding of carriers.
